

Insulin

I can use my insulin pump and insulin pen to give insulin at meal times with adult supervision.

I'm learning about my insulin doses, but I shouldn't change them without speaking to my parents.

I need to look after my injection and cannula sites and rotate them so they work well for me.

Rapid insulin is used when I eat carbohydrates and snacks.

Long acting insulin is used for background insulin.

All insulin needs to be stored in a fridge.

I help with my injections and changing infusion sites and I know how to give an injection in case my pump fails.
